Department	Position Title
Northwest Territories Health and Social Services Authority	Territorial Lead, Training and Practice Improvement - North
Position Number	Community	Division/Region
48-15186	Inuvik	Child, Family & Community Wellness / HQ

PURPOSE OF THE POSITION

The Territorial Lead, Training and Practice Improvement – North, is responsible to develop, lead, facilitate and track all training that is required for Child, Family and Community Wellness staff throughout the Northwest Territories. This position will research and recommend client care services quality standards as they relate to the realm of Child, Family and Community Wellness services provided to children, youth, families and communities, and will collaborate with territorial, regional, and professional practice leadership to establish performance improvement activities. The Territorial Lead, Training and Practice Improvement - North will help guide practice based on the shared vision of the NTHSSA.

SCOPE

The Northwest Territories Health and Social Services Authority (NTHSSA) is the single provider for all health and social services (HSS) in the Northwest Territories (NWT), with the exception of Hay River and Tłıchʔ regions, covering 1.2 million square kilometer and serving approximately 43,000 people, including First Nations, Inuit, Metis, and non-indigenous. HSS includes the full range of primary, secondary and tertiary health services and social services including family services, protection services, care placements, mental health, addictions, and developmental activities, delivered by more than 1,400 HSS staff.

While the Tłıchʔ Community Services Agency (TCSA) will operate under a separate board and Hay River Health and Social Services Agency (HRHSSA) will in the interim, the NTHSSA will set clinical standards, procedures, guidelines and monitoring for the entire NWT. Service Agreements will be established with these boards to identify performance requirements and adherence to clinical standards, procedures, guidelines and policies as established by the NTHSSA.

Under the direction of the Minister of Health and Social Services, the NTHSSA is established to move toward one integrated delivery system as part of the government's transformation strategy.

Cultural safety is an outcome where Indigenous peoples feel safe and respected, free of racism and discrimination, when accessing health and social services. Relationship-based care is fundamental to cultural safety because it prioritizes the need for trusting, caring and ongoing relationships between patients and clients with providers. Embedding a culturally safe approach in Health and Social Services has been identified as critical to supporting equitable access to care with the long term goal of improving health outcomes for Indigenous peoples.

For Indigenous residents of the NWT, who represent over 50% of the population, these shifts are particularly significant because despite some improvements over time, there remains significant disparities in their overall health status in comparison to non-Indigenous residents. Health disparities are largely attributed to inequalities in the social determinants of health, which for Indigenous residents include the legacies of colonization and systemic racism. Indigenous families and their children are disproportionately overrepresented in the Child and Family Services system. Most of the children who are involved with Child and Family Services are Indigenous, a fact that can be attributed both to the historical legacies and systemic racism as mentioned above, but also to the lack of culturally safe and accessible supports. These factors have impacted the way health and social services are delivered and accessed by Indigenous peoples in the NWT, contributing to additional complexities in Indigenous health disparities. When Indigenous peoples feel culturally safe after interacting with staff in the Health and Social Services system they are more likely to access care when needed, leading to improved health outcomes.

Located in Inuvik, the Territorial Lead, Training and Practice Improvement – North, will report to the Territorial Director, Engagement and System Development (ESD), and lead training and professional development activities to ensure Child, Family and Community Wellness staff have an adequate skill level in the delivery of the services and programs they deliver. The incumbent will be expected to maintain a working knowledge of all current and future services and programs delivered in the territory. As well, this position will assess the variability of Child, Family and Community Wellness services to determine areas to improve client care / service outcomes, quality, or efficiencies, and is also required to evaluate Child, Family and Community Wellness client care / service excellence from a structure, process and outcomes framework. The Territorial Lead will be called upon to address a variety of issues on a daily basis. These can range from providing briefing notes to the Territorial Director, ESD, providing support and recommendation to other Territorial Leads, Territorial Specialists, and Regional Managers, and representing the NTHSSA in meetings, or conferences in addition to developing curriculum, providing training and on-going professional development to all of Child, Family and Community Wellness staff.

The incumbent will foster and sustain academic partnerships to advance professional practices and development for the work force, and the Territorial Lead, Training and Practice Improvement – North will role-model vigilance in ensuring the highest of quality care and services.

This position engages in topics that include interpersonal and system racism, and the intergenerational individual and community impacts of colonization, including the legacy of residential schools.

The legacies of colonization, assimilation policies such as residential schools have impacted Indigenous health outcomes and the way health and social services are delivered and accessed. As such, the incumbent is expected to honour and promote a culturally safe environment at all times.
