Department	Position Title
Northwest Territories Health and Social Services Authority	Administrative Officer
Position Number	Community	Division/Region
48-2430	Fort Smith	Child, Family and Community Wellness / Fort Smith

PURPOSE OF THE POSITION

The Administrative Officer provides administrative support to the Northwest Territories Health and Social Services Authority's (NTHSSA) regional Child and Family Services division. This position will oversee and be responsible for administrative, logistical, and financial services that support these social services programs.

SCOPE

The NTHSSA is the single provider of all health and social services in the NWT, with unique collaborative arrangements in the Hay River and Tlicho regions. It covers 1.2 million square kilometers and serves approximately 43,000 people, including First Nations, Inuit, Metis, and non-aboriginals. Health and social services include a full a range of primary, secondary, and tertiary health services and social services including family services, protection services, care placements, mental health, addictions, and developmental activities, delivered by more than 1,400 health and social services staff.

Under the direction of the Department of Health and Social Services (DHSS), the NTHSSA is established to move toward one integrated delivery system as part of the government's transformation strategy. Territorial and federal legislation inform the development of DHSS policy, which leads to operational policies, guidelines and standards of care that are developed by the NTHSSA for regional implementation.

While the Tlicho Community Services Agency (TCSA) will operate under a separate board and Hay River Health and Social Services Agency (HRHSSA) will in the interim, the NTHSSA will set clinical standards, procedures, guidelines, and monitoring for the entire Northwest Territories.

Service Agreements will be established with these boards to identify performance requirements and adherence to clinical standards, procedures, guidelines, and policies as established by the NTHSSA.

The legacies of colonization and residential schools have impacted Indigenous health outcomes and the way health and social services are delivered and accessed. Staff are expected to honour and promote a culturally safe environment at all times.

Cultural safety is an outcome where Indigenous peoples feel safe and respected, free of racism and discrimination, when accessing health and social services. Relationship-based care is fundamental to cultural safety because it prioritizes the need for trusting, caring and ongoing relationships between patients and clients with providers. Embedding a culturally safe approach in HSS has been identified as critical to supporting equitable access to care with the long term goal of improving health outcomes for Indigenous peoples.

For Indigenous residents of the NWT, who represent over 50% of the population, these shifts are particularly significant because despite some improvements over time, there remain significant disparities in their overall health status in comparison to non-indigenous residents. Health disparities are largely attributed to inequalities in the social determinants of health, which for Indigenous residents include the legacies of colonization and systemic racism. With specific reference to Child and Family Services, Indigenous families and their children are disproportionately overrepresented in the system. Most of the children who are involved with Child and Family Services are Indigenous, a fact that can be attributed both to the historical legacies and systemic racism as mentioned above, but also to the lack within the Child and Family Services System of culturally safe and accessible family supports. These factors have also impacted the way health and social services are delivered and accessed by Indigenous peoples in the NWT, contributing to additional complexities in Indigenous health disparities. When Indigenous peoples feel culturally safe interacting with staff and the HSS system they are more likely to access care when needed, leading to improved health outcomes.

Colonization has a continuing and profound impact on NWT Indigenous families today; therefore, the Senior Administrative Coordinator position is responsible to promote and support a system-wide shift towards prioritizing early childhood development, culturally-based prevention, and family and community-driven programing that supports the health and wellbeing of all families in the NWT and supports families who are struggling with multiple barriers to safely staying together.
