

IDENTIFICATION

Department	Position Title
Health and Social Services	Senior Policy Analyst
Position Number	Community	Division/Region
49-14555	Yellowknife	Policy, Legislation, and Intergovernmental Relations

PURPOSE OF THE POSITION

The Senior Policy Analyst leads the development of new, and the enhancement of existing health and social services policies, legislation, and associated instruments. The Senior Policy Analyst will interpret existing policies and legislation and provide expert advice, and is responsible for completing research, consulting stakeholder groups, and advising the Assistant Director, Policy, Legislation, and Intergovernmental Relations, the Department of Health and Social Services' (Department) senior management, and the Health and Social Services Authorities (HSSAs). The incumbent will represent and explain the position of the Department and the Government of the Northwest Territories (GNWT) at inter-departmental and inter-governmental meetings that pertain to the Department's legislation to protect the interests of the health and social services system.

SCOPE

Located in Yellowknife, the Senior Policy Analyst reports to the Assistant Director of Policy, Legislation, and Intergovernmental Relations and provides direct support to the Minister, Deputy Minister, and Assistant Deputy Ministers, and provides advice and recommendations to senior managers within the Department, the HSSAs, and the Department of Executive and Indigenous Affairs. The incumbent is also responsible for assisting senior government officials with the implementation of specific health and social services intergovernmental strategies.

The Department is responsible for over 30 pieces of legislation and their associated regulations that cover a broad spectrum of subject areas related to health and social services delivery and professional regulation. Considerable and continuous modernization of these pieces of legislation is required in an integrated manner to accommodate the complex and evolving northern, national, and Indigenous governance regimes. The Senior Policy Analyst is responsible for leading the activities of maintaining and amending the legislation and policies of the Department. This includes providing policy and legislative advice and direction to senior managers in the Department and HSSAs; extensive engagement with Department and HSSA staff and stakeholders, including other government departments, non-government organizations, professional associations, and FPT governments; and working with stakeholders, program divisions, and the HSSAs to ensure the implementation of Departmental initiatives, policies, and legislation comply with federal and territorial statutes.

As it relates to the Department's legislative and policy work, the incumbent is responsible for monitoring, advising, and participating with GNWT senior management in discussions of intergovernmental relations issues and opportunities that affect the NWT. The effective and coordinated representation of the Department and thus successful advancement of NWT interests in intergovernmental matters depend greatly on the cooperation of other divisions and the HSSAs. This internal collaboration, along with ensuring support from other relevant governments, is an important objective of this position.

This role also provides analysis and broad policy and strategic advice on national policies and initiatives, and GNWT priorities, strategies, and initiatives; and provides support to a range of Federal/Provincial/Territorial (FPT) working groups. The Senior Policy Analyst has significant latitude in their work and in providing recommendations and advice and may be called upon to provide advice, guidance, and assistance respecting policy and legislative analysis, development, implementation, and interpretation, and may be assigned to lead other special projects as required.

The Senior Policy Analyst is required to maintain an extensive understanding of social, economic, cultural, and political factors in the NWT and of all programs and services offered by the Department and HSSAs in order to ensure the Department's policy and legislative work reflect the changing needs of the population and the vision of the GNWT. The incumbent may work under tight deadlines with information of a confidential nature and regularly responds to complex, conflicting, and highly sensitive situations that require creative and strategic solutions. Concentration, organization, and attention to detail are essential in this role, and the incumbent is responsible for providing timely, accurate, and appropriate responses. Not meeting these goals will have an adverse impact on the Division's ability to fulfill its mandate and meet its overall goals and objectives. Recommendations based on poor research could also have a negative impact on the Department as well as the HSSAs.

This position works closely and collaboratively with program divisions, the HSSAs, professional associations and other stakeholder groups, FPT governments, as well as the Department of Executive and Indigenous Affairs and legislative drafters and legal counsel from the Department of Justice. The incumbent experiences a very dynamic and fast-paced environment with competing interests held by the Department, HSSAs, GNWT, stakeholder groups, and FPT governments.

One significant challenge faced by governments is that mainstream organizations, like health and social services, cannot be separated from the legacy of colonialism and anti-Indigenous racism in Canada. In health and social services settings, present day anti-Indigenous racism or systemic racism, impacts access to services, quality of care, and health outcomes for Indigenous peoples. This also results in a system that inherently privileges the ideas, needs, and norms of the dominant white settler population, including the privileging of western knowledge over Indigenous approaches and ways of knowing.

The HSS system is committed to addressing anti-Indigenous racism and promoting cultural safety and anti-racism. DHSS staff are expected to honour and promote a culturally safe and anti-racist environment at all times and to interact with clients, families, community members, partners, and colleagues in a relationship-based approach. This involves being tactful, respectful, self-aware, and humble in order to develop and maintain ongoing and trusting relationships.
